The Poultry Research and Training Centre (PRTC) dedicated to advancing scientific poultry research, skill-based training, technology demonstration, and entrepreneurship development. The Centre functions as an integrated platform connecting education, research, extension, and industry-oriented innovation in poultry science. Centre maintains over 4,000 birds representing eight improved and indigenous germplasm lines, including commercial layers, broilers, dual-purpose birds, and native breeds. The Centre operates multiple production systems such as deep litter sheds, California cage systems, hatchery units and quail production units. PRTC is strongly oriented toward capacity building and entrepreneurship development. The Centre regularly conducts employment-oriented and entrepreneurship-focused training programs for farmers, rural youth, students, and specialized groups.
